Korean Rebels Appear Getting Set for a Fight

By C. S. CHIN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Lt. Gen. Chang Do-yong's military junta met today with members of Premier John M. Chang's Cabinet while troops backing the coup took defensive positions on the outskirts of Seoul.

There were no reports of open military opposition to the army rebels who seized control of Seoul early Tuesday. But the rebel troops dug foxholes on the north-east edge of the city along one of the main routes from the demarcation line between South and North Korea, where most of the South Korean army is on station.

A heavy concentration of troops also was deployed in other areas of Seoul's eastern outskirts.

A news photographer who reached the area was told by an army captain that he could not take pictures because the activity there was part of a military defense operation.

The newspaper Hangook Ilbo reported that Lt. Gen. Lee Han-jim, head of South Korea's powerful 1st Field Army in the front line had ordered his men to remain neutral in the crisis.

The junta met for 25 minutes with five members of Premier Chang's Cabinet, apparently trying to force official resignations in an attempt to put a stamp of legality on the seizure of government authority.

It first was reported that a sixth minister, Yun Paik-jung, was present at the meeting but later it developed that he was not there. His absence was not explained.

Premier Chang and the other nine members of his Cabinet were still in hiding and ignored broadcast demands from the junta that they come out and confer. The five ministers who met with the junta already were under detention and were put under house arrest when the meeting ended.

The junta solidified its control in Seoul and named a temporary Cabinet of 24 generals, colonels and lieutenant colonels to run the government.

The junta took command of the national and Seoul police, whose members clashed briefly with the rebel troops that seized control of Seoul before dawn Tuesday.

Brig. Gen. Cho Hwang-man, a former provost marshal, was named to head the National Police and Col. Lee Kwang became Seoul police director.

New police directors also were named for the eight provinces.

With Seoul quiet and the junta in control of the police, most of the estimated 3,600 troops that had entered the capital Tuesday withdrew to the suburbs. But machine gun posts remained at several key intersections and tanks were deployed on a hill overlooking the city.

U.S. Gen. Carter Magruder, the U.N. commander in Korea, tried to minimize the effect of the coup with a statement Tuesday night that it appeared to have little public support. But no open opposition was reported from outside Seoul and Chang's forces continued to claim control of the entire country.

The U.S. charge d'affaires, Marshall Green, reiterated his opposition—as the chief U.S. diplomatic representative in the country—to the overthrow of the elected government. But he added: "It will be a matter the Koreans, of course, will have to live with."

U.S. officials in Washington refused to comment until the situation in Korea clarified.

Seoul newspapers reported the rebel junta had instructed the foreign ministry to order all diplomatic missions abroad to inform foreign governments there would be no change in South Korea's pro-American foreign policy. The junta had said one reason it moved against Premier Chang was because his government had not been vigorous enough in its anti-communism.

Gen. Chang conferred with President Yun Po-sun, who rapidly was discarding the figurehead role allotted the president by the post-Syngman Rhee constitution. The President appeared trying to reconcile the rebel leaders and the nation's politicians.

Green also met for three hours Tuesday with President Yun. Apparently the embassy had made no direct contact with Gen. Chang or his aides.

Seoul was quiet with most stores open. Banks and schools also reopened.

Withdrawal of All Military in Laos Demanded

By TOM OCHILTREE

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk today demanded the withdrawal of all military forces from troubled Laos and charged the Communists are violating the cease-fire there.

Rusk told the East-West foreign ministers' conference on Laos that the United States is willing to pull out its military mission from Laos if Communist North Viet Nam does the same.

Rusk offered the conference a three-point plan to turn Laos into a neutral country removed from the pressures of the cold war so it can make "progress toward more stable political institutions, economic well-being and social justice."

In calling for Laotian neutrality, Rusk insisted that absolutely all foreign military personnel should be withdrawn.

"There is no problem about the withdrawal of the limited U.S. military personnel assisting with the training and supply of government forces," Rusk said. But he insisted that the Communists from North Viet Nam who have been assisting the rebels must also leave the country.

He said the United States does not want to see Laos "as a staging area or as a thoroughfare for agents of subversion, saboteurs or guerrilla bands to operate against Laos' neighbors."

Rusk called for effective international machinery to insure the cease-fire and charged that the Communist led Pathet Lao is repeatedly violating it.

The meeting was told that a new report from the Canadian-Indian-Polish control commission had been received. A British spokesman said it confirmed that "some sporadic fighting is continuing." But he said it was not immediately clear whether this is significant.

Rusk said the fighting must be stopped. "As a matter of first importance, and 'proper instructions' must be issued to the control commission so it can get out in the field to observe the truce.

"Information from Laos indicates that rebel forces continue to attack in a number of localities and that rebel troop movements are occurring which are prejudicial to an effective cease-fire," Rusk said.

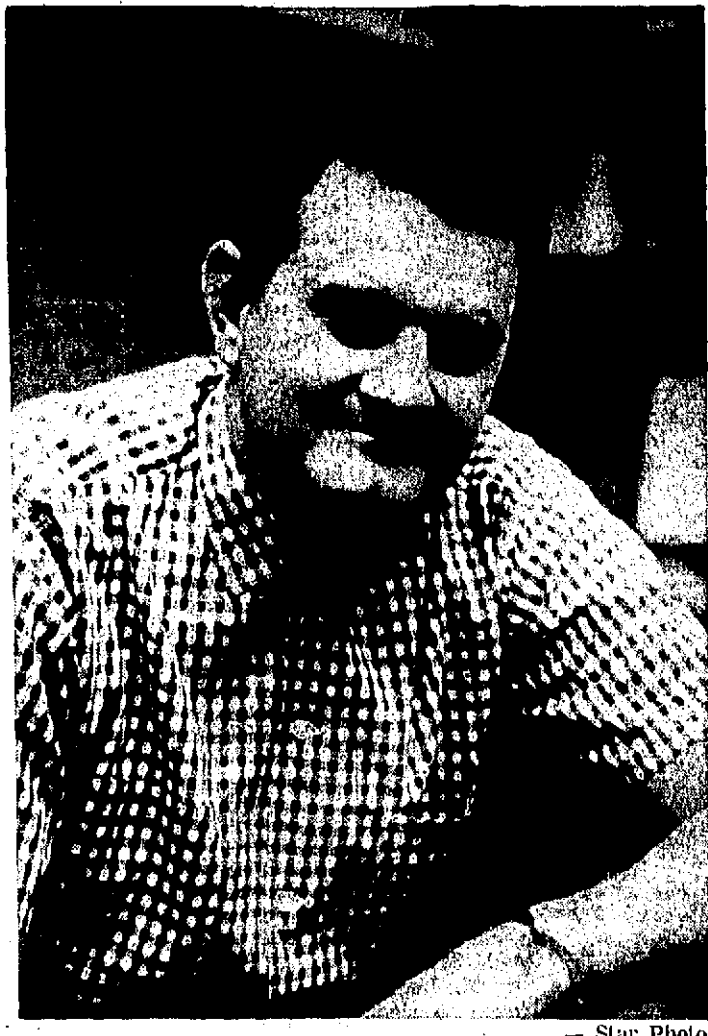

After considerable diplomatic dickerings, the conference finally opened Tuesday on the basis of a report from the control commission that in general fighting had ceased between the Pathet Lao and the pro-Western royal Lao forces of Premier Boun Oum.

Rusk made his charges as news dispatches from Laos said royal government and rebel delegates reached a surprise compromise agreement to form a coalition government and set up a joint military committee to police the truce.

But protracted negotiations are likely to be required before the government and then the military group are actually formed.

The report of agreement at Ban Namone also raised the possibility that a single Laotian delegation might eventually be sent to Geneva, to replace the separate delegations here representing the three rival factions.

All-Time Peak Business at Plaswood, 4 Shifts

Ed J. Ogran, general manager of Southern Plaswood Corporation, Oakhaven

EDITOR'S NOTE: Half of Hope's employed population work in local industry. How these plants are doing today means more to local prosperity than nation-wide figures or government statements. This is the fourth of a series of Star interviews with industry heads in Hope.

A decade ago The Star's editor made perhaps 30 photographs of the original Plaswood factory in Oakhaven—and then had to throw them away because technical production problems beset the mill and made publication inadvisable.

The plant switched to a new type of wall or insulation pressed-board, which was in itself successful, but encountered the fiercest kind of market competition. Those early days represented a decade of frustration and disappointment for the Plaswood pioneers.

A Busy Plant
Tuesday your editor again visited the factory, now owned and operated by Southern Plaswood Corporation, which includes many of the original Arkansas stockholders, and found an expanded plant bristling with production.

In fact, there had been so many changes your editor got lost while trying to find the office. He finally reached Ed J. Ogran, general manager—and for his questions Mr. Ogran had the answers.

Southern Plaswood Corporation is turning four shifts, operating seven days a week, employing 106 people, and has an annual pay roll above $300,000.

Mr. Ogran said 1959 was Plaswood's best previous year, 1960 wasn't quite as good—but 1961 is setting a new high record.

"I don't mean to leave the impression we have no problems," he continued. "You always have them in the manufacturing business. But we are getting along."

What turned the tide for Plaswood?

Furniture Core
The editor learned from Mr. Ogran for the first time that Plaswood isn't making wall or insulation board any more. Today it is manufacturing furniture core exclusively. It turns out these panels to any specifications required by customers. Plaswood makes the base material for furniture manufacturers, and then these manufacturers apply their own veneer or plastic surfacing.

More than a decade ago the Plaswood founders installed a giant hydraulic press, which is still in use today. But Southern Plaswood Corporation now is completing installation of the world's largest hydraulic press, and expects to have it in production by next September. By the word "largest" Mr. Ogran explained that the new press will manufacture a panel 6 by 18 feet—and this is the largest panel in the industry. The new press is rated at 3,000 tons total pressure.

much of the raw waste material had to be bought from distant sources. That problem has been whittled.

Mr. Ogran told your editor Tuesday that today Southern Plaswood Corporation buys all its wood waste from mills in Hope or within a 30-mile radius.

Plaswood spends $85,000 a year for that wood waste—which, with the $300,000 pay roll, means a return to the Hope trade area of nearly $400,000 annually.

No Stranger to Arkansas Utilities

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—James Honaker of Frankfort, Ky., the man who will make a detailed study of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co.'s rate structure for the Public Service Commission, is no stranger to Arkansas utilities.

"Mr. Honaker was employed by this commission in a 1956 case which resulted in Arkansas Power & Light Co. refunding more than $9 million to its customers," PSC Chairman Lewis Robinson said today.

Robinson and commissioner J. M. Malone agreed that Honaker is one of the top utility men in the country.

He represented Arkansas cities in two rate cases which preceded the AP&L investigation—a 1954-55 Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. case and a 1955-56 Arkla case.

"We hired Mr. Honaker because we want to know what the score is," Malone said. "We have confidence that he will provide the true facts about the case, whatever they are."

Robinson said Honaker would be paid $7,500 and he probably would begin his work next week. The study will take a minimum of five to six weeks.

When Honaker has all his information, Robinson said, the PSC will set another hearing on Arkla's minimum charge increase, regardless of whether protesting cities are ready with their testimony.

Robinson said the commission has heard nothing from protesting cities since a recent hearing, at which they were given an indefinite time to prepare their case. "No deadline has been set on them yet," Robinson said. "But we'll set a deadline if they don't notify us of their progress pretty soon. We can't let this case drag on forever."

JFK Thinks Over Meet With Mr. Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP)—Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles said today President Kennedy has "under consideration" a meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Bowles told the Senate Foreign Relations meeting that "The decision is up to the President."

He said no decision has been made.

Bowles talked with the Senate committee members in a closed session. Word of what he said was given to newsmen later by Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark.

Fulbright said it was his first official confirmation that negotiations looking to a conference between the two leaders were under way.

Bowles himself had told reporters when going into the committee meeting that he couldn't say anything about the matter.

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee plans to question Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles about reported negotiations for a meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he and other members would "seek some answers" from Bowles at a closed-door committee session this morning.

While Bowles is scheduled to brief the committee on crisis in Laos, the Congo, Cuba and elsewhere, members said they also would demand some official light on published reports of efforts to arrange an informal conference between the two leaders early next month.

"We have read a good deal in the papers that such a conference is being talked about, but our committee has not been informed," Gore told newsmen.

"I, for one, intend to ask Mr. Bowles if the reports are correct and whether, if there is to be a conference, it will be without a plan or agenda or any real hope for success."

Kennedy received a personal message from Khrushchev Tuesday, in reply to one of Feb. 22 in which the President expressed hope for improvement of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Khrushchev's letter was delivered by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov who spent 30 minutes with the President. But neither Menshikov nor the White House would disclose its contents nor say whether they talked about a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

Mr. Jones appeared on a program arranged by Mayor Frank Powell of Little Rock, Paul Ralston of Missouri and Ralph W. Emerson was taken in as a new member.

Spending, Tax Cuts Ruled Out by JFK

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has ruled out any massive spending efforts or income tax cuts to speed the revival of U.S. economy.

Kennedy has told Democratic congressional leaders he is going along with a group of his economic advisers who believe the recovery is solidly based despite a hard core of unemployment.

This was represented as a presidential decision to gamble on the effect of measures he already has recommended to Congress—some of which have passed, some still pending.

Some of the President's advisers are convinced that Kennedy's programs for housing, aid to education, highway construction, Social Security expansion, depressed areas and agriculture will give the economy's climb sufficient impetus.

There is a frank difference of opinion among his advisers, however. Some contend the recovery bears signs of weakness that can only be overcome by increased government spending or by tax cuts.

This group argued that even though factory sales and personal incomes showed gains, steel production remained at only about 60 per cent of capacity and little progress had been made in reducing unemployment.

But Kennedy, described as much more optimistic about the economy than he was a couple of months ago, overruled these arguments.

This apparently means he will try to hold the budget deficit for the year beginning July 1 to $2.1 billion—the amount estimated last month by Budget Director David E. Bell—or even to reduce it slightly.

Tells Neighbor Struggle Is for Survival

OTTAWA (AP)—President Kennedy asked his Canadian neighbors today to join the American states in attempting to "contain the powerful struggle of ideologies, and reduce it to manageable proportions," to help rid the world of the threat of nuclear weapons.

In an address to the Senate and House of Commons in the Canadian Parliament, the President said the free world "should not misjudge the force of the challenge we face—a force that is powerful as well as insidious, that inspires dedication as well as fear, that uses means we cannot adopt to achieve ends we cannot permit."

"Nor can we mistake the nature of the struggle," he continued. "It is not for concessions or territory. It is not simply between different systems. It is the age-old battle for the survival of liberty itself."

The address marked the high point in Kennedy's state visit to Ottawa.

Kennedy told the Canadians that their nation has played an important and constructive role in various efforts to maintain peace.

He added:

"If we can contain the powerful struggle of ideologies, and reduce it to manageable proportions, we can proceed with the transcendent task of disciplining the nuclear weapons which shadow our minds and of finding a widened range of common enterprises between ourselves and those who live under Communist rule. For in the end, we live on one planet and are part of one human family; and whatever the struggles that confront us, we must lose no chance to move forward toward a world of law and of disarmament."

The President clearly asked Canada to contribute to the job of helping underdeveloped nations.

He put it this way:

"It is clear that no free nation can stand alone to meet the relentless threat of those who make themselves our adversaries—that no free nation can retain any illusions about the nature of that threat—and that no free nation can remain indifferent to the

Jaycees to Sponsor Miss Hope Contest

In a meeting this week, the Jaycees voted to sponsor the fourth annual Miss Hope and Miss Hospitality Beauty Pageant, to be held in June.

The winner of the Miss Hope Contest will represent Hope in the Miss Arkansas Pageant, to be held in Hot Springs. The winner of the Miss Hospitality Contest will represent Hope in the Miss Hospitality Pageant, to be held in Little Rock.

The local winners of the beauty pageant will represent Hope in two of the largest beauty pageants to be held in Arkansas this year.

In other business the Jaycees voted to have a fund raising campaign to pay for the new playground equipment, being installed at the Fair park. All funds raised through this campaign will go direct to the park to apply on this new equipment.

The Jaycee Club, earlier this year, voted $400 to be given to this project; however, the need for new equipment at the park has inspired the club to give all proceeds from their money making project to the park.

POPULOUS PLANET—Recent United Nations estimates put the world's population at about three billion people. This figure, however, does not include another, greater population—livestock—upon which man depends and which competes with man for a share of the nutrition produced by plants. Dr. George Borgstrom of Michigan State University has converted the world's livestock into "population equivalents." Livestock is measured in terms of the energy (calorie) requirements of a 150-pound man. On this basis, energy consumed by all livestock equals that which it would take 10 billion men to consume. Total "human biomass"—human and livestock requirements added together—amounts to over 13 billion human units. The U.S. and Russia each has a human biomass above one billion. Chart above is based on Dr. Borgstrom's calculations.

Science at Work on Many Items

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gorillas, and a star atlas are news items from scientific studies:

Gorilla Lore
Gorillas lead a peaceful social life, and beat their chests not in threat but just to let out emotional tension. They sleep 15 hours a day, spend five more eating, and hike about half a mile daily in search of food.

Most popular ideas about gorillas are in error, reports George Schaller, University of Wisconsin zoologist who spent 18 months in close observation of gorillas in the Belgian Congo.

These largest primates depend primarily on facial expressions and gestures to communicate among themselves, and use only a few sounds. They pout when sad, bite their lips when nervous.

Spaceman Cocoon
Dangerous radiation threatens future space travelers. Heavy shielding could protect them, but that kind of weight is a drawback.

One possibility is to devise an electrical cocoon around a space vehicle, to deflect radiation much like the earth's magnetic field deflects cosmic rays and other radiation pouring at the earth. This possibility is being investigated now at General Electric's Space Sciences Laboratory in Philadelphia. The goal is to devise a lightweight "cocoon."

Star Atlas
Using special sensing equipment, astronomers are preparing a new type of star atlas charting the infrared or heat radiation of known stars.

One purpose of the project is to determine the relation between a star's visible radiation and its infrared radiation, which can be useful in developing systems for space navigation. Eastman Kodak Co. is preparing the atlas.

El Dorado Vote

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — El Dorado voters ballot today on a $2 million industrial bond issue to finance a plant for Chase Grocers Co., a rubber products manufacturer. The bond issue would be repaid with profits from the operation of the company. The company will guarantee payment by giving mortgages on about $5 million in real estate and machinery.

It was the second month in a row in which payrolls advanced, but the April increase was twice that recorded in March and was more widespread among industries.

Factory employment alone accounted for more than half of the payroll advance. The latter pay checks resulted from greater-than-seasonal hiring of workers and a lengthening of the workweek as overtime operations increased in some factories and curtailed operations were stepped up in other plants. Wage rates rose, but only slightly.

The April gain was more significant than it appeared on the surface; the March total was boosted by the one-shot payment of GI insurance dividends to veterans. If this is removed from the March total, the April increase amounts to $2.5 billion.

The rise was concentrated in salaries and the wages of work-

Man to Trial for Bombing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Emmett E. Miller, 44-year-old West Memphis bookkeeper, is scheduled to go on trial Wednesday in Pulaski County Circuit Court in connection with an attempted bombing at a Little Rock Negro college.

Miller, one of three men arrested by FBI agents last July 12, was indicted on a charge of attempting to commit a felony. The charge is a misdemeanor.

The other two men were not indicted by the grand jury. Federal charges against the three were dropped several months after the arrests and the case was turned over to county authorities.

Miller and Robert Lynn Parks, 33, also of West Memphis, were arrested near Philander Smith College. FBI agents said they found a 30-stick dynamite bomb beside a college building. Hugh Lynn Adams, 33, of Bassett, was arrested about the same time at his home.

steady erosion of freedom around the world.

"It is equally clear that no Western nation on its own can help those less-developed lands fulfill their hopes for steady progress. And finally, it is clear that, in an age when new forces are asserting their strength around the globe—when the political shape of the hemisphere is changing rapidly—nothing is more vital than the unity of your country and mine."

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

OTTAWA (AP)—President Kennedy was expected to urge Canada today to join the United States in contributing money as well as sympathy to needy nations of Latin America.

He could encounter a noncommittal—if not cool—response. Aid to Latin America, policy toward Cuba and positions on emergencies in Southeast Asia and Africa were subjects certain to arise in Kennedy's private conversations with Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker.

Those talks this morning and Kennedy's address to Parliament this afternoon formed the main business of the only full day of his state visit to this capital of the United States' oldest ally in the Western Hemisphere.

Good fellowship abounded on the arrival of the President and First Lady Tuesday on their first trip outside the United States since his inauguration.

Pledges of continued cooperation were exchanged at the airport reception in which Diefenbaker and Governor General George Vanier warmly greeted the U.S. visitors.

The warm friendliness continued at a state dinner and reception given by the governor general and Mrs. Vanier and an earlier tree-planting on the rich Government House.

Differences between the two governments will show up today when the President and prime minister get down to business. The conflicts are slight in comparison with those dividing the free and Communist worlds, but they affect the unity of the Western Hemisphere.

Knowledgeable sources said Kennedy would encourage Diefenbaker to join in financial assistance to the impoverished peoples of Latin America. Both officials have declared the best way to banish communism from the Americas is to improve the standard of living of its population.

The United States already has launched a $500 million program of aid, keyed to adjusting social and economic systems of Latin American lands to the needs of their people.

Canada's assistance to those nations has been small. Its efforts have been directed primarily toward Asia—India, for example—and to a lesser extent toward Africa. It was understood that Diefenbaker would rather continue to devote the bulk of what aid Canada is able to render to those areas where its helping hand is now recognized.

DOROTHY DIX

He's May, She's September

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am 22 and in love with a 35-year old woman who has three kids and is married to a no-good man currently behind the bars. She loves me way down deep. I feel the same but she does 't think marriage is for us. "Go out with girls your own age," she said in her last letter. Well, I did and came back loving her all the more. She's planning to get a divorce. I won't settle for anything less than marriage. I love her too much for that. I'm so afraid I'll lose her. Help me! —R.

Dear R.: One of the things that may attract you to this older woman may be her good common sense. She realizes that only a great love could stand the strain of such a union, and that she may be well past the prime of life just as you are entering it. Her first marriage may cause her to realize that a marriage to someone so much younger than herself can only bring another tragic complex of personal relations. If you care for her as sincerely as you say, then weigh the consequences. Calculate your relative years and physical powers in the decades ahead. Don't let your strong protective feeling or your purely physical impulses mislead you.

Humans jump to conclusions. Here is an example:

Dear Helen: I am the wife of the man that wrote about his old lady. I am the one he is speaking of.

I have worked all my life to make a home for him. He was once a drinking man and lost most everything. I love my husband. That's why I stuck by him. If this other woman would stay home, take care of her family and leave married men alone, there would be a lot more happy homes. I have cried and begged my husband to stay away from her. He will leave her one day and return to me, mark my words. —E.B.C.

Dear E.B.C.: The husband in question lives in Tennessee, and you, according to your letter, in New London, Conn. I've had a similar letter from a doctor's wife in Paris who thought she too, was the "old lady." This shows the problem is universal.

Dear Helen: I have six children; 21, 19, 12, 6, and 5 years old. Two families, as you may guess by their ages. The older ones are angry because the little ones drag around their toys and leave them scattered about the house. I can't satisfy all of them. As it is my work gets half done. It seems like I repeat the chores over and over. Yet the older children have to be told to wash the dishes, sweep the floor and tidy up. It's always, "Do this" and "Do that!" on my part. This gripes them. Why can't kids do the things they know have to be done? —ONE - WHO - CAN'T - WAIT-TO-BE-LONESOME

Dear Longing-for-Solitude: You would probably be the most miserable person in the world if left strictly to yourself. But kids shouldn't be permitted to soldier on the household chores. You're the boss. Lay down the law. Either you're in control, or they are. Detail the work each morning as a top sergeant would do in the army and see it's done or else—I'm sending you my leaflet on "Better Home Management." (Three cheers for you, as the mother of six children!)

Send your problems to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available.

TO HAVE AND TO KILL

By Robert Martin Copyright © 1960 By Robert Martin

CHAPTER XVII

The bed had not yet been made and the crumpled sheet of blue note paper was still in the ash-tray on the table by the bed,

along with the ashes and cigarette stubs I'd seen there earlier in the morning. I picked up the paper, smoothed it out and read a pencilled message in handwriting I recognized as Darmody's.

"No soap in the bathroom.

Would you bring some, please?"

Thanks."

It was plain that Darmody had written it the evening before after his arrival, no doubt to Florine, the maid. I entered the bathroom, saw a fresh cake of soap in a holder beneath the shower head.

I looked into a wastebasket in a corner. A soap wrapper was in the bottom, along with an empty cigarette package, a printed paper laundry band from a shirt and a toothpaste match folder.

Nothing else.

I left the bathroom thinking that the Darmody domestic help had not gotten around to removing debris from the guests' bedrooms, or even to making the beds, no doubt due to upset schedules resulting from the death of Laura Reynolds and the disturbing presence of law enforcement officers. On my way to the door I saw my reflection in the mirror above the dresser and paused to peer and rub a hand over my bristly chin.

The top dresser drawer was partially open and for no particular reason, except, as I have said, I am snoopy, I pulled it out and saw a small cardboard box. I picked it up, opened a flap and saw a screw-top bottle and a blackbristled brush. Printing on the box told me that it was black hair

dye. William Darmody's vanity was no business of mine, but as I replaced the box and closed the drawer I thought that if my hair turned gray or white I would not dye it to fool the public.

I continued on to the bedroom door, but before I reached it Darmody entered. His head was lowered and he did not see me right away.

There was no place for me to hide and I was caught red-handed any way you looked at it.

When Darmody raised his head

Douglas Williamson, president of the Student Council, made remarks on behalf of the students;

Messrs. W. V. Rutherford and B.

W. Carter responded on behalf of the teachers.

Following the program, lunch was served in the lunchroom.

And saw me standing there he jerked his pad of blue note paper to me with a pencil. There was no doubt that he was demanding an explanation. He was certainly within his rights, but I was not going to write a lame and phony reason. So I just shrugged, smiled

my apologies and started to edge past him to the door.

He didn't buy it at all. He shook his head, lips compressed beneath the black mustache, nostrils distended in indignation. I shrugged again, backed out and closed the door behind me.

I sighed and walked away. And met Max Daney at the head of the stairs.

He looked incredibly tired. I asked:

"Did the sergeant give you a bad time?"

He shrugged wearily. "Just a lot of questions. I wasn't much help. Cecil's with him now."

"I was supposed to let Cecil know when Griffith finished."

"It's all right. I took Cecil in.

Can he do this to us?"

"He can. It's homicide."

At that moment the door to Mrs. Daney's suite opened. She came out into the hall, closing the door louder than necessary. I thought. Max turned at the sound.

Senators Take 4th in a Row; Detroit Gains

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Washington's surprising Senators, allowing just 13 hits and five runs in five games, won their fourth in a row Tuesday night as southpaw Hal Woodeshick and reliever Dave Sisler checked the New York Yankees on two hits for a 3-2 decision. That pushed the Detroit Tigers, who won 10-1 at Baltimore, four games ahead of New York in the American League race.

The Chicago White Sox defeated Minnesota 5-4, Boston beat Cleveland 6-7 and Kansas City rapped the Los Angeles Angels 6-4.

In the National League, first place San Francisco beat Chicago's Cubs 2-1. Milwaukee defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 2-1 and Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 4-2.

The Yankees scored a run in the third inning on two walks, a wild pitch and an infield out, but didn't get a hit off Woodeshick until Mickey Mantle cracked his 10th home run with one out in the sixth. Their only other hit was an eighth-inning single by Bill Skowron off Sisler, who had come on in the seventh and fanned pinch-hitter Yogi Berra with the bases loaded.

The Senators had 10 hits and scored all their runs in the third on consecutive belts by Danny O'Connell, Chuck Hinton, Jim King and Willie Tasby and a clinching sacrifice fly by Dale Long. Bill Stafford (0-1) was the loser.

Detroit scored 10 runs for the second night in a row at Baltimore, with this barrage backing right-hander Frank Lary for his 100th victory in the majors.

Steve Barber (4-3) was the loser, giving up a two-run homer by Rocky Colavito and a two-run triple by Bubba Morton in a decisive four-run fourth. Norm Cash also homered for Detroit.

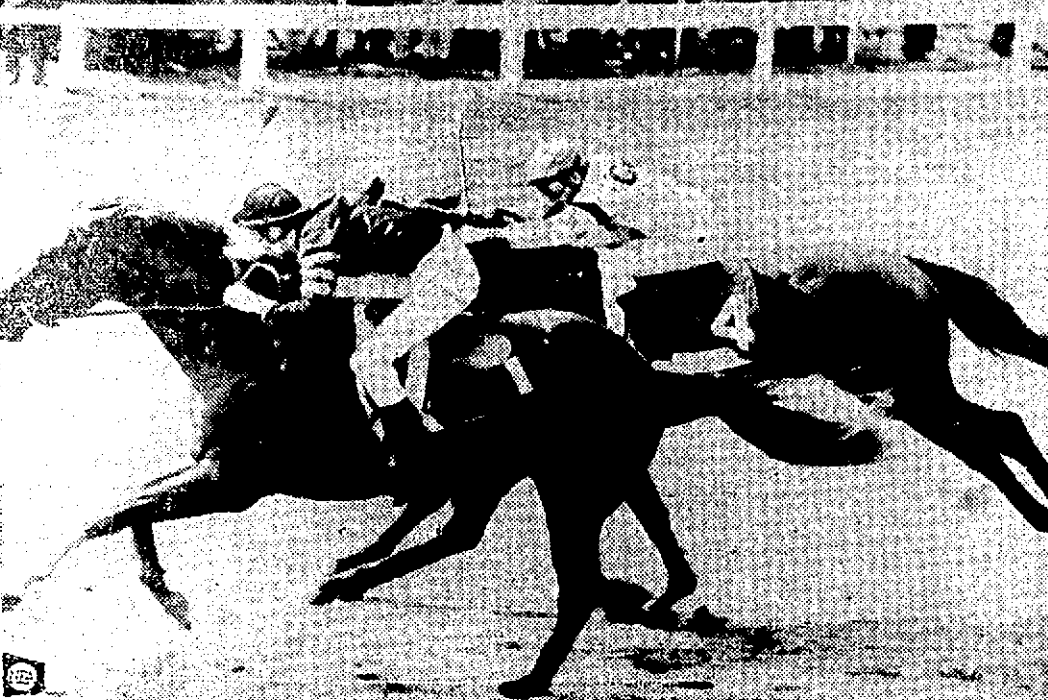

Early Wynn (4-1) nailed his 288th victory with a two-out tie-breaking single for the White Sox in the eighth inning. Minnie Minoso's seventh inning home run had tied it 4-4 for the Sox, who three times came from behind. Loser Pete Ramos (3-3) had three of the Twins' six hits, one a home run.

Frank Malzone and rookie Jim Pagnanari homered for the Red Sox. Ike Delock won his second with relief help in the eighth. Wynn Hawkins (3-2) was the loser.

A single by Dick Howser gave the A's the winning run in the sixth inning against Eli Grba (3-4) while rookie Norm Bass blanked the Angels on four hits for eight innings. Jim Archer relieved in a four-run ninth, and saved it for Bass (2-1).
